

Two local Catholic high schools among the best in the country

(Grand Rapids, October 22, 2004, 4:50 p.m.) Two West Michigan schools are receiving some national recognition.

In the first ever National Catholic High School Honor Roll, Catholic Central High School in Grand Rapids and Lake Michigan Catholic Middle and High School in St. Joseph have been named two of the country's top 50 Catholic high schools.

The award is based on how well the school does in academics, Catholic identity and civic education.

Two hundred fifty Catholic high schools across the United States were in the running for this honor.
